 Room: MAC 212

1. Course Description: Greek I will provide students with a foundational understanding of New Testament (Koine) Greek phonology, morphology, syntax and vocabulary. Basic grammatical building blocks of the language will be learned including the syntax of verbs, nouns, pronouns, preposition etc. The goal is to develop the students' abilities in the language so that they may begin reading simple exercises built from the text of the Greek New Testament.

2. Objectives: the student will be able to

- 1) recognize and recite the basic morphology of nouns, adjectives, pronouns, prepositions and verbs;
- 2) analyze and evaluate how the morphological tags transform meaning (noun cases, verb tenses and moods);
- 3) identify and evaluate elementary syntactic structures (subject, verb, object and modifiers);
- 4) master the meaning of the most frequently used words in the New Testament;
- 5) identify, distinguish, and discuss options in translating simple sentences;
- 6) develop regular disciplined study habits that will facilitate learning of any discipline; and
- 7) enjoy the study of Greek having seen its usefulness for deepening one's understanding of the New Testament and for personal spiritual formation.

3. Course Textbooks

Required:

Hildebrandt, Ted. Mastering NT Greek CD-ROM ($49; Baker, 2003) was the original version of what you have now available online.

You will be required to pay for the use of the materials specifically designed for this class which are to be download from my web site ($20, payment due before Sept. 9 after which time the cost will go up to $40). This must be paid before the first exam can be taken and after which no course work will be received or graded. The textbook, workbook and an interactive program that teaches, drills and speaks to you in Greek is available at:

http://faculty.gordon.edu/hu/bi/ted_hildebrandt/index.cfm or just Google "Ted Hildebrandt" and pick the Gordon Faculty site and click on the link to: "New Testament Greek Interactive."

I have taken the 500 page textbook from Mastering NT Greek and making it speak Greek in the Acrobat *.pdf file that you can download. The click on Greek words in the first ten chapters and it will pronounce the Greek word from the Acrobat pdf document. I purposely put them online to save you money and provide ease of access. If you want you can print the whole set of books (textbook 500 pgs./workbook 500 pgs.).

I just completed an interactive online computer program that can teach, drill, speak and evaluate your answers instantaneously. Embedded in that interactive program is an animated Greek Avatar video series which goes over the things we do in class. This Avatar named “Ted” who teaches each of the 28 chapters of the textbook. Some people like him better than me because he flies around better than I do. He’s a great way to supplement what you get in class or use him for review.

Optional: Second Semester you may want to purchase a Greek NT Critical Editions of the Greek NT (different manuscript readings given): Nestle-Aland. Novum Testamentum Graece (28th ed. Revised) (German Bible Society, 2012). $40 at Amazon.
United Bible Society Greek Text [Aland, Karavidopoulos, Martini 5th ed. (German Bible Society, 2014) -- $40-48.

Readers Greek NT (supplies hard words making it easier to read): Both Zondervan and United Bible Societies have "reading" Greek New Testaments that are very handy in that they give you all the hard words used 50 times and under.

4. Course Process

Daily Reading

We will travel through the grammar at the rate of about one or two chapters per week. You will be expected to read and master the content of those chapters progressively for each class period. There will be a non-comprehensive quiz for every 1-3 chapters we finish. Please take the daily assignments seriously as once one gets behind it becomes a major challenge and may easily become impossible to catch-up. Greek is a lot like Mathematics if you miss a step it is extremely difficult to proceed—don’t miss a step or fall behind it can be fatal. Old proverb: “Inch by inch it’s a cinch, yard by yard too hard.”

Gordon workload statement: For each semester hour of credit, students should expect to spend a minimum of 2-3 hours per week outside of class in engaged academic time. This time includes reading, writing, studying, completing assignments, lab work, or group projects, among other activities.

Daily Workbook and Assignments

The exercises from the workbook will be collected during each class period. You should be ready to translate, discuss or ask questions about your responses to the exercises during each class period. The workbook is assigned and one may use the interactive program to learn and drill over the chapter content.

Memorization

While memorization has received a bad reputation in our more visual and informationally overloaded society, it is still one of the key building blocks of language learning. Memory work is essential for the mastery of beginning levels of a language. You will be expected to learn the basic paradigms/chants and vocabulary items in a cumulative manner. You should set up patterns of study that include a review of previously learned vocabulary and paradigms. We will learn to chant the most salient features of the language (27 chants and you will have the basic structure of the language down). Master those chants and a good part of the course will be under your belt. The weekly quizzes may include any previously learned paradigms or vocabulary.

Exams

There will be three exams (two exams and a two-part final). These will be cumulative over the semester material from the textbook many of the questions taken straight out of the workbook.

Late work

If a quiz is missed, there will be a make-up only if there is a valid excuse. The exams also must be taken on time unless previously arranged with the instructor. Late workbook exercises will also be automatically counted down if not handed in on time with no make up depending on whether it was excused or unexcused. If a workbook assignment or quiz is over a week late it will not be accepted.

Cheating/Plagiarizing

Any cheating or plagiarizing of material will result in an automatic failure of the entire course. It is expected that those studying the New Testament in Greek embrace standards of integrity fitting a disciple of Christ.

Pairing: Studying Greek in groups of 2-3 is very useful both for accountability and also for understanding. While you will need some time to master the paradigms which is usually best done alone, conceptual understanding and translations are often best done in small groups.

Course Grading

Percentage:

Written workbook exercises	10%
Class attendance and participation	10%
Quizzes	40%
Exams (2x)	25%
Final Exam	15%

Tentative Grading Scale (the class will be graded on a curve using the following as a ball-park starting set of figures)

100-92	A	79-77	C+	62-60	D-
91-90	A-	76-72	C	59-0	F
89-87	B+	71-70	C-
86-82	B	67-65	D+
81-80	B-	65-63	D

Presence and Participation: It is assumed that you will attend class and participate. Attendance/Participation is 10% of your grade. Attendance will be taken daily. "Being there" is not just a philosophical abstraction in this class. You need to be in class to stay up with the work. There is a high correlation of those skipping class and those not surviving the course. So if you want to be successful, please come. You get 3 freebies after that it will substantially reduce the 10% with each extra cut.

5. Students with Disabilities: Students with disabilities who need academic accommodations must speak to professor and also inform him in writing regarding the nature of the disability and the request for specific accommodations within the first two weeks of class. Ann Seavey from the Academic Support Center must be made aware of and approve in writing the accommodations requested. Students are also responsible for making sure documentation of the disability is on file in the Academic Support Center. See Ann Seavey, Jenks 412 Ext 4746. Failure to register in time with the Professor and have the ASC approve the desired accommodations will compromise our ability to provide the desired accommodations.
6. Tentative Course Assignment Schedule: The instructor will try to gage the progress of the class and adjust the speed of the learning accordingly. The syllabus and assignment schedule will undoubtedly flex according to the progress of this particular class cohort. Such changes will be announced and negotiated in class. Be there. The student is responsible to stay up with all adjustments made during the progress of the class. The rhythm of the class will be largely:
 1) presentation of a chapter's content, 2) the completion of the workbook for the next class period and 3) a quiz. Every three-four weeks there will be an exam.

5. Bibliography: taken from the textbook

Introductory Grammars:

- Eleftheriades, Olga. Modern Greek: A Contemporary Grammar (Palo Alto, CA: Pacific Books, 1985). Modern Greek grammar.
- Hanson, Hardy and Gerald Quinn. Greek: An Intensive Course (New York: Fordham University Press, 1992). Excellent classical Greek textbook.
- * Hildebrandt, Ted. Mastering NT Greek (2003). This is a revision of my old Greek Tutor program published by Parsons Technology and then Baker Book House. An etextbook, eWorkbook, elexicon and an eVocabulary builder list are online in Acrobat format (*.pdf).
- * Machen, J. Gresham. New Testament Greek for Beginners (Toronto: The Macmillan Company, 1923). It is pedagogically superb and has been used effectively to teach many generations of students Greek. Somewhat dated now. I believe this is on the www.ccel.org web site in full text.
- Mounce, William D. Basics of Biblical Greek (Grand Rapids: Zondervan 1993). It is well researched. The introductions of each chapter stress the significance of the chapter. It carefully motivates students. Stresses nouns first and leaves the verb until chapter 15 unfortunately. This is what Gordon-Conwell Seminary has used.
- Summers, Ray. Essentials of New Testament Greek (Nashville: Broadman & Holman Publishers, 1995). A concise introduction to first year Greek. Easy to use with clear brief descriptions of grammatical features.
- Wenham, J. W. The Elements of New Testament Greek (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1970). Easy to use but does not teach accents.

Lexicons:

- * Bauer, Walter; William Arndt; F. Wilbur Gingrich and F. E. Danker. A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament and Other Early Christian

Literature (Chicago: The University of Chicago Press, 1957). $142.
This is a wonderful foundational resource. One should look at electronic resources like Logos (the best); Bible Works or Accordance if you're thinking of buying this. ESword is free online as is Bible Hub (very nice):

Bible Works 8 Software (Hermeneutica circa $325). Logos (best but quite pricey [but worth it] and Accordance are other free options – Bible Hub and eSword.

eSword is free (see prof.) I'll be giving you this for free early in the spring.

Logos Software: Personally I am switching from BibleWorks to Logos for ease of use and also the tremendous resources that are available there. It is, however, very expensive and in my opinion too expensive but they do have a corner on the market currently. Logos will last you a lifetime.

Zerwick, Max and Mary Grosvenor. A Grammatical Analysis of the Greek New Testament (Rome: Editrice Pontificio Istituto Biblico, 1996). This is the best and most useful reader's aid I've seen and its under $30! It will help you take the next step into second year Greek.

Wallace, Daniel B. Exegetical Syntax of the Greek New Testament (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 1995).

Brown, Collin. The New International Dictionary of New Testament Theology (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 1978). –This is the one to own.

iPhone app. “Wav Bible” (free) is really helpful if it is not used as a crutch.

And for a heavy finale: (get it at CBD on sale):

Friedrich, Gerhard (ed.) and Bromiley, Geoffrey. Theological Dictionary of the New Testament (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1974).
